

Seem Maleh

Seem Maleh is the Managing Editor of the Institute for Transnational Arbitration (ITA). In this role, Ms. Maleh manages and edits the ITA Board of Reporters monthly contributions to Kluwerarbitration.com- the most prominent international arbitration publisher/database in the world. Maleh is also the Associate Editor of the World Trade and Arbitration Materials journal (WTAM) published by Kluwer International, the Editor of the ITA's Scoreboard of Adherence to Transnational Arbitration Treaties and has recently become the Managing Editor of Kluwerarbitrationblog.com. In recognition of her accomplishments and success in expanding the coverage of the ITA Board of Reporters to include more countries with arbitration developments from around the globe, Maleh was appointed Member at Large on the ITA Advisory Board.

Before joining the ITA, Ms. Maleh worked as a consultant at Hunt Oil Company in Dallas, Texas on an international arbitration case involving the government of an Arab country. Ms. Maleh was also contracted at TransAtlantic Petroleum in Dallas before moving to Toronto at the end of 2009.

Prior to moving to the U.S., Ms. Maleh was an attorney at Sinan Law Firm in Damascus, Syria where she practiced corporate law and was involved in various domestic arbitration disputes. Ms. Maleh has been a member of the Damascus Bar since 2001 and a qualified Syrian lawyer since 2003.

Ms. Maleh has earned two LL.M degrees (Master of Laws); the first from the University of Warwick in England, where she wrote a dissertation on The Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards under the New York Convention (The Public Policy Exception), and the second from Southern Methodist University (SMU) in Dallas, Texas. She earned an LL.B (equivalent to JD) from the University of Damascus, Syria. She speaks English and Arabic fluently.
